AUBREY HOGAN

A.D. • Eau Claire, WI

Aubrey Hogan is a visual artist based in Eau Claire, creating under the name A.D., a family name passed down through generations and carried forward through his work. His studio practice is rooted in a deep appreciation for nature, texture, memory, and storytelling.

Working primarily in heavy-body acrylic, Hogan embraces the impasto tradition of French Impressionism, allowing each brushstroke to remain visible and expressive. Thick layers of paint create tactile, dynamic surfaces where texture becomes an integral part of the narrative. His paintings explore wilderness, wonder, resilience, and the sacredness woven into everyday life.

Drawing inspiration from landscapes, national parks, folk symbolism, and the American West, he creates imagery between memory and myth. Wandering astronauts, bison, wildflowers, and open horizons recur as symbols of longing, exploration, and hope.

At the center of Hogan's practice is the belief that art is sacred storytelling. He seeks to create moments of pause and reflection, inviting viewers back into wonder, goodness, and presence.
